This simple test makes you think, doesn't it? If a sickness or accident happened and you were disabled, just how long could you make ends meet without a regular paycheck coming in? For a month, or three months, or three years?

What could you do?

- Use your savings?

Of course, but would they last long enough? Probably not.

- Sell your property or assets?

Yes, but under a forced sale, buyers look for bargains at your expense... plus, even that money might not be enough.

- Live on your spouse's income?

Certainly, but can you make it with 'half' income? Especially if you have medical costs piling up on top of your everyday living expenses.

- Borrow money?

It's a possibility, but a slim one. Who would loan you money if you can't work to pay it back?

- Disability Income Insurance?

Absolutely – that is the right answer!

Yes, if a disability occurs,
you need
